

Tyler Fine is an experienced professional with a strong background in outdoor recreation and education. He is pursuing a Ph.D. in Leisure Studies, which he is expected to complete in May 2025 from Oklahoma State University. Prior, he earned a Master of Education in Curriculum and Instruction of Recreation and Leisure from Sam Houston State University in May 2022, and originally earned a Bachelor of Science in Outdoor Recreation Leadership and Management from Northern Michigan University in May 2020.

Tyler has gained valuable experience through various positions in the field. Currently, he serves as the Outdoor Coordinator at The College of Southern Idaho, where he has successfully established a gear rental program, organized outdoor trips and clinics, and mentors students in professional outdoor environments. Previously, he worked as a Graduate Assistant at both Sam Houston State University and Oklahoma State University, where he contributed to curriculum development, mentored students, and helped develop program standards and courses. Finally, in the summer of 2022, Tyler served as an Assistant Director at Maine High Adventure Base, overseeing logistical operations, managing budgets, and training staff members.

In addition to his professional experience, Tyler holds an impressive array of certifications. He is an American Red Cross Lifeguard Instructor, Wilderness First Aid Instructor, and a Professional Instructor of Rock Climbing. He is also an ACCT (Association for Challenge Course Technology) instructor and holds certifications in Wilderness First Response, Interpretive Guiding, and Search and Rescue training, among others.

Overall, Tyler Fine's educational background, extensive experience, and diverse certifications make him a highly qualified professional in the field of outdoor recreation and education. His dedication to fostering a safe and enriching outdoor experience for individuals of all ages is evident through his past roles and accomplishments.